PREPAREDNESS.

Preparedness.
The oak that rises from the sod
Bespeaks the hand work of God,
And straight upborne its mighty form
Forbids the jeopardy of storm,
And grim and stern in eloquence,
It warneth man in consequence,
By measure that it doth possess,
Of timely wrought
Preparedness.

Preparedness.
Oh Nation! in the name of God
Your armor gird and be prepared,
Your youth bring forth in potent might
And make war bold and to fight,
Aye, hold aloft the torch of light,
Nor suffer violence to right,
And measure full you will possess,
Of timely wrought
Preparedness.

PRESIDENT WILSON FULL AUTHORITY

Senator Curtis Is for Prohibition and Regrets that the Administration Is Not Friendly to the Measure.

Senator Charles Curtis, of Kansas says in a letter, received today by the Chamber of Commerce: "You may rest assured I will continue to do everything I can to secure additional temperance legislation." This letter is in answer to a recent telegram, sent to the Senate and House of Representatives by the officers and directors of the Chamber of Commerce asking that the present prohibition bone-dry bill be passed, making the Nation dry after January 1. Mr. Curtis says also: "When the food bill was before the Senate, the friends of prohibition proposed an amendment prohibiting the manufacture of foodstuffs into intoxicating liquors. This amendment passed the Senate, but the next day it was claimed that at the request of the Administration a reconsideration was asked on the vote by which the amendment was adopted, and a new amendment was adopted which prohibited the manufacture of foodstuffs into spirituous liquors and left the question as to the manufacture of malt liquors in the hands of the President."

"I am very sorry the Administration was able to defeat the amendment offered by friends of prohibition. The question of manufacturing foodstuffs into malt liquors is now in the hands of the President and he has full authority to issue an order to stop their use into such manufacture if he desires to do so. There has been an amendment offered to the Senate to prohibit the manufacture of foodstuffs into any kind of liquors and I will gladly do all I can to assist in securing favorable action upon it."

The small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Jones, of this city, has a very bad black eye. RUN DOWN BY FORD.

Miss Edith Oswalt, clerk in Superintendent Levy's office, of the Mineral Belt Railway Company, at Century, met with an accident at about 9 o'clock Saturday morning that might have proved fatal but for her presence of mind.

The young lady was walking on the railroad track in Picher at a point where it is crossed by Netta street, when she was hit by a Ford driven by J. T. Dickenson, a contractor of that city, who had never driven a car but two or three days, and run over.

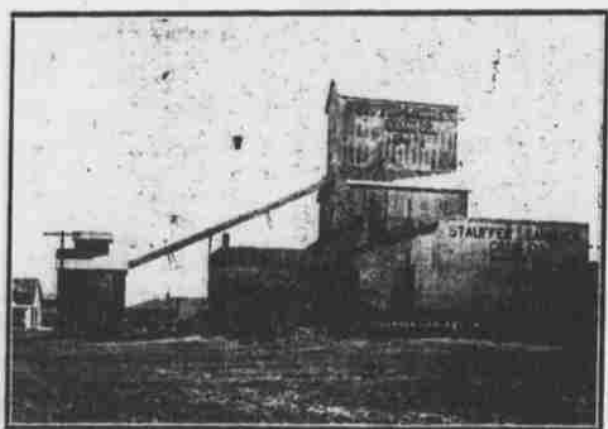

Miss Oswalt was not seriously injured by the accident, as she grasped with the machine when she saw that it was about to strike her and hung on for about fifty feet when she lost her hold and fell, but in such a manner that the wheels went on either side of her body.

By the time the machine was stopped and the injured woman was found to be able to ride, Mr. Levy, who had arrived on the scene, assisted Mr. Dickinson to get her into the car and she was taken to the Picher hospital and from there to her home in North Century.

It is thought that Miss Oswalt is not injured with the exception of a few bruises.
